

NATALIE M. LEWIS
Let the Healing Begin!

Natalie M. Lewis is a woman with a fervor for others to know that “...we are all fearfully and wonderfully made...” Born in Washington, DC, she has spent most of her adult life living in Memphis Tennessee.

Having been on a mission for God, beginning with her college years at Oral Roberts University in Tulsa, OK, where she participated in various mission trips from local to as far away as the Czech Republic, Natalie is often referred to as “the Catalyst”, speeding up a reaction, but not damaged in the process.

Also a songwriter, Natalie believes that her purpose is to let others know that there is a light at the end of the tunnel and with sacrifice and an acknowledgement of God’s presence, we do overcome. Natalie was a worship leader, teacher, and assistant to her pastor at The Way of Truth Deliverance Institutional Church in Memphis, TN.

Called to action and with a decision to answer, God has opened doors for her to speak at various women’s shelters, depression support groups, sexual assault shelters, and sexually transmitted disease centers, throughout the Memphis area. She has also published excerpts of her book in the online magazine Divine Caroline.

In her very powerful and compelling book, she is very transparent about her life challenges with suicide, domestic violence, and other struggles..... so that someone else may be helped.....

Natalie has traveled throughout the United States, Europe, and the Caribbean, and loves to write and sing. Natalie is a wife and mother to two handsome boys.
